

UK government boost to life science industry includes early access to news drugs

Article | 6 December 2011

A multi million pound package of measures were outlined by the Prime Minister David Cameron to support the UK's life sciences industry and promote faster access to new medicines for patients, as briefly reported yesterday, and included a new £180 million ($281.3 million) fund to support the next medical breakthroughs.

The UK life science industry is the third largest contributor to economic growth in the UK with more than 4,000 companies, employing around 160,000 people and with a total annual turnover of over £50 billion.
